IPTV from Netvue at Phoenix TV

IPTV is the convergence of television distribution with IT data network infrastructure. IPTV has rapidly become the industry standard for TV and audio-visual distribution around buildings.

Phoenix TV is a Hong Kong-based Chinese television broadcaster that serves the Chinese mainland and Hong Kong along with other world markets with substantial Chinese viewers.

Phoenix bought a Netvue IPTV system in 2012 to provide live broadcast TV around their new London UK studios and production centre. Netvue's IPTV streaming system distributes a range of TV channels, carrying live broadcast TV from 4 satellites and IP encoded video and audio from the on-site TV studios, across the company's IT network to multiple TV screens throughout the production facility.

Netvue also supplied Phoenix with a Digital Signage player to allow them to put branding and graphics on the TV display in their reception area.
